The main rate of UK corporation tax is currently 25%. There are a variety of tax exemptions potentially available to a UK holding company, which can make having a UK holding company an attractive prospect in certain circumstances. Some of the general considerations which may apply to UK holding companies are outlined below.

The UK holding company regime offers a "participation exemption" that allows, subject to conditions, dividends received by a UK holding company to have no corporation tax liability in the UK, while capital gains made by a UK holding company on the sale of shares in a subsidiary are also free of tax.
